

NGSA NEWS

| NURSING GRADUATE STUDENT ASSOCIATION |

Interesting reading

- Thalidomide Survivors meet with health minister
- Vaccine Myths

Upcoming events!

- CaPSScoop! December Edition!
- SkillSets! \(Yes! A new one!\)
- Institute for Health and Social Policy: Dec. 2nd 1230-1400, 1130 Pins Ouest. (See same day email)
- French Medical Workshops \(Sign up!\)

Call for Posters!!

Who: Nursing faculty, students and friends
When: Friday, January 16th, 1400-2000
Where: Thomson House Ballroom, 3650 McTavish St.
More details to come.

Do you have experience working in Global Health or working with vulnerable populations? have you done a project in a global health context? Send us you poster topics or titles and we will save you a spot so you can display your work:
mcgilnursesforglobalhealth@gmail.com

Job Opportunity

Exciting and paid opportunity at MUHC for nursing student!*

We are looking for a nursing student (bachelor's or master's level) to help with the development of a new Cancer Survivorship program at MUHC. The Cancer Survivorship program is working to address the unique long-term needs of cancer survivors through a variety of activities.

Role Description: Assist principal investigator Dr. Geneviève Chaput in the development of educational workshops for Montréal area family physicians and for cancer survivors and their caregivers.

Responsibilities include conducting literature reviews for presentations and grants, assisting with research study educational workshops at area hospitals, helping to perform basic data analysis, and working on Ethics applications and reports.

Hours are very flexible!

This position is great for learning new skills in research and program development and for utilizing community nursing skills. At the master's level there may be opportunities for individual research projects and manuscript publication.

Please contact: Kristin Hendricks at knhendricks@gmail.com with interest or for more information.

Mental Health Video

Have you struggled with mental health? Did you find support that helped you overcome some of the challenges? Help us reduce the stigma associated with this roadblock graduate students often face during their studies. PGSS, in collaboration with McGill's specialized network of support and a very talented local film-making studio, are coming together to produce a video that will challenge what it means to battle mental health malaise during your studies. Seeking help is not a sign of weakness but many times, a necessity. Your testimonial will bring invaluable depth to our message and will encourage others to find support

Contact Brighita Lungu:
membership.pgss@mail.mcgill.ca and help us make a change! Filming is scheduled to take place between December 5th and January 25th, and participants will be needed for 2-3 hours.

WHAT?	A student-led course covering many hot topics related to Global Health: Ethics in Global Health, Climate Change, Aboriginal Health, Mental Health, Comparative Health Care Systems and more to come...
WHO?	Open to students from Medicine, Nursing, Physiotherapy, Occupational Therapy, Social Work, Dentistry, Psychology, Dietetics and Human Nutrition, Speech-Language Pathology, and Kinesiology programs.
WHY?	You are a health care trainee and you want to learn more about global health and how to get involved
WHEN?	Starting on Tuesday January 13th, 2015 from 6 - 8 pm, for 10 weeks (excl. reading week)
WHERE?	McIntyre Building, room 210, McGill Downtown campus
HOW?	Registration starts November 20th, 2014 http://mcgillmed.com/clubs/mcgill-interprofessional-global-health-course

Follow us on facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/interprofessionalglobalhealthcourse>